

Guideline for Advertising of Professional Services
v2.1

May 2013

The Association of Professional
Engineers and Geoscientists of Alberta

FOREWORD

APEGA publishes practice standards and guidelines for the purpose of educating its members and the public about matters of professional practice. Practice standards and guidelines are not intended to be short courses in engineering or geoscience. In general, these documents are produced to meet the following objectives:

- To assist APEGA members in performing their professional role in accordance with the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act and the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Regulation under the act.
- To help the public understand the role of APEGA members and the responsibilities members have when performing their professional services.

This document is a revision of the previous document published in April 2005. This latest revision of the guideline reflects changes to the name of the Association and the governing legislation that became effective in 2012.

Participants

APEGA's Practice Standards Committee (PSC) publishes practice standards and guidelines to promote high standards of professional practice. At the time this revision was completed, the committee had the following membership:

Dick Walters, P.Eng., Chair
Rory Belanger, P.Eng.

2 GENERAL PRINCIPLES 1

3 SPECIFIC ITEMS 2

1 OVERVIEW

Advertising of professional services has significant potential to influence the public perception of the professions as well as an individual client's perception and expectations of members of the Association (Members). The Code of Ethics requires Members to "uphold and enhance the honour, dignity, and reputation of their professions and thus the ability of the professions to serve the public interest." The Code also requires that Members only undertake work that they are competent to perform and that they act with integrity and honesty. These tenets also apply to advertising of professional services.

1.1 Scope

This guideline sets out general principles concerning the advertising of professional services by members of the Association. The principles pertain to all forms of advertising. In addition, the guideline also provides examples of typical specific items. The list of those items is not intended to be exclusive, however, in terms of the application of this guideline.

1.2 Purpose

The purpose of this guideline is to assist Members in understanding the Association's expectations and limitations concerning advertising of professional services. It also serves as a guide against which Member conduct can be measured.

1.3 Definitions

For the purposes of this guideline, the following terms and definitions apply.

Association

The Association of Professional Engineers and Geoscientists of Alberta (APEGA).

Members

Individual persons and permit holders registered under the Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act.

Professional Services

Professional services are those services that pertain to the practice of engineering or geoscience.

2 GENERAL PRINCIPLES

- Advertising shall be clear, factual, and without exaggeration.
- Advertising shall be in good taste and not diminish the dignity, professional image or stature of the professions.
- Advertising shall not be critical of, or claim superiority over, others.
- Advertising shall comply with all applicable laws.

Guideline for Advertising of Professional Services

v2.1

- A professional service shall not be advertised unless that service is provided under the direct personal supervision of a Member who is available to the extent necessary to provide competent direction of the work.
- Advertising shall not make any reference to fees or charges for services.
- Professional stamps/seals or permit stamps shall not be displayed for advertising or commercial purposes.

3 SPECIFIC ITEMS

To assist Members in dealing with specific matters, several common forms of advertising professional services are identified in this section. This table provides typical examples to which deviations may be made after considering the intent of the general principles.
